Belt and Road investments in Europe bearing fruit

13 Nov. 2019 +42 mehr By CHEN WEIHUA in Athens chenweihua@chinadaily.com.cn

Officials, lawmakers and experts said the successful participation of Greece in the Belt and Road Initiative sets an example for other European nations to follow.

In August 2018, the country became the first developed European nation to sign an agreement with China to jointly advance the BRI — a project which aims to improve connectivity and promote economic development between Asia and Europe, Africa and the Americas.

Alexis Tsipras, who was prime minister of Greece at the time, showed his support by attending the second Belt and Road Forum for International Cooperation in Beijing in April. And during his trip to China last week, Greek Prime Minister Kyriakos Mitsotakis said Greece believes the BRI will help create the infrastructure needed to develop global trade. Xinhua News Agency reported that he said Greece has a lot to contribute because of its location and geostrategic position as a natural bridge linking three continents.

The rapid rise of the Port of Piraeus into a major port in the Mediterranean Sea and its anticipated further expansion has been widely regarded as a BRI success story.

Dimitrios Papadimoulis, a Greek vice-president of the European Parliament, said Greece and China have built a trusting strategic partnership in many sectors, which is crucial for their bilateral investments and economic development.

“This cooperation contributes to the regional peace and connectivity and should continue to enforce inclusive growth and fight inequalities and poverty,” Papadimoulis said. “The BRI underlines China’s strong financial engagement and its innovative network-based project design, which undoubtedly could contribute to more inclusive global governance.”

He said he fully agrees with the consensus reached by the leaders of the two countries that Greece was a model for other European countries wanting mutually beneficial BRI cooperation.

“As vice-president of the European Parliament, I have worked to solidify a comprehensive strategic global partnership between China and the EU that is beneficial for both sides by strengthening intergovernmental, interparliamentary, and people-to-people contacts and relations,” he said.

Eleni Theocharous, a former Greek member of the European Parliament, said China’s investment in Piraeus has helped the Greek economy at a time of crisis.

“In the current environment of global economic vulnerability, we should welcome all efforts that contribute to job creation and multilateral economic cooperation,” Theocharous said.

Ivona Ladjevac, head of the regional center for the Belt and Road Initiative at the Institute of International Politics and Economics in Belgrade, Serbia, said Greece’s decision to join the BRI and the 17+1 platform of mainly Central and Eastern European countries “strongly indicates that Greece highly values China as a partner”.

“Since both sides are strongly devoted to mutually beneficial cooperation based on equality, it is very likely cooperation will be further developed in the manner of win-win strategy,” Ladjevac said. President Xi Jinping’s high-level visit confirms their mutual commitment, she said.

Ladjevac said the BRI is all about sharing benefits and it is already bearing fruit in Europe.
