Games as Systems

„At the heart of every game is a set of formal elements that when set in motion, create a dynamic experience in which the players engage.“

(Fullerton 2019: 129)

„A game is a system in which players engage in an artificial conflict, defined by rules, that result in quantifiable outcome.“ (Salen/Zimmerman 2004: 80)

The MDA Framework

Cf. LeBlanc/Hunicke/Zubek 2004

(Sylvester 2013: 44)

Information structures

- Hidden
- Open
- Mixed
- Dynamic

„The less information players have, the less informed their choices will be. This affects the sense of control they have over their progress.“ (Fullerton 2019: 148).

Information glut

The decision is no longer a decision

Causes:

- Too much information Implemented in the game
- Metagame information

Information starvation

Game collapses into reactive thrasing and random choices.

Causes:

- Fictional ambiguity
- „Authored challenge preparation problem“

“Videogames are the epitome of this tendency to invest the activity of playing with a fictional frame of reference, to imagine our decisions within a rule-bound system as narratively relevant events in a fictional world and to understand the performance of a game as the gradual development of a narrative story.“ (Domsch 2019: 104-105).

Branched story structure (Sylvester 2013: 99)

(Sylvester 2013: 100)

“A NARRATIVE TOOL is some device used to form a piece of a story in a player’s mind.” (Sylvester 2013: 83).

Spatial narrative

vs.

Sequence narrative

- Environmental storytelling
- Privilege spatial exploration over plot development
- Evocative spaces
- Visual clues

- Conveyed through concrete narrative artifacts
- Narrative that happens primarily as a sequence of events in time
- Narrative that is presented as a recounting of these events through sequentially arranged signs (e.g. words on a page).

“World narrative strengthens when a world is more coherent and expresses more internal connections.”
(Sylvester 2013: 89).

“Within an open-ended and exploratory narrative structure like a game, essential narrative information must be redundantly presented across a range of spaces and artifacts. (...) The game world becomes a kind of information space, a memory palace. “ (Jenkins 2004: 126)

Escape rooms provide non-linear spatial exploration
in order to construct the overall linear narrative
