Was ist OPERAS?

Eine verteilte Forschungsinfrastruktur für die Geistes- und Sozialwissenschaften im Europäischen Forschungsraum

- Mission: Ressourcen in Europa zu bündeln und zu koordinieren, um effizient die Bedürfnisse innerhalb der Wissenschaftskommunikation für Forschende im Bereich der SSH zu adressieren

- Vision: Das Ziel von OPERAS ist es, Open Science für die Forschung in den Sozial- und Geisteswissenschaften Wirklichkeit werden zu lassen und ein wissenschaftliches Kommunikationssystem zu schaffen, in dem das in den SSH produzierte Wissen allen zugänglich gemacht wird.

Description
WEAFING will develop innovative garments with integrated textile actuators, sensors, and electronics for haptic stimulation. We will advance the technology and manufacturability of electroactive fabrics resulting in lightweight and flexible textile actuators. Integration of the actuators in wearables takes into account different textile morphologies, soft mechatronics, producibility, and human perception. The garments developed will have a high level of wearability as the actuator is the garment itself and the technology is silent. These wearables are based on a new kind of textile muscles that are also enhanced within the project. In wearable technology, most R&D comprises sensors and only very little concerns wearable actuator technology. There is a limited set of actuators for wearables and 95% of the applications for haptic feedback are based on vibration motors. Textile muscles offer a completely novel and

Abstract Violence and inequalities suffered by Central American women force t migratio ss has begun, they are exposed to greater violence bec migrants, r mestizo, women and, sometimes, minors. The jou space i ericans, particularly women, are exposed to violence by crimi Orderly and regular mobility would protect them fro to which they are exposed; to this end, migration governance is needed. This ana with intersectionality as a theoretical approach and the methodology used was based on interviews and a bibliographic review.
