Project description

Please describe the most important aspects of your project in a concise form – also in bullet points if you wish. Please answer the guiding questions on the left.

Description of the content of your project (max. 2000 characters) What is your project about? How does your project overcome existing disciplinary boundaries? Describe which disciplines are involved and how they are interconnected. Also address open formats, self-study opportunities, or possibilities for interdisciplinary credit transfer.
Target group Who do you want to address with your project? How many students can your project potentially reach?
Expected start date of your project

Which e-learning elements, tools or apps do you plan to use for your project? You can find more ideas on our tools page (in German): „Tools für die Lehre"
Didactic concept and methodological approach (max. 2500 characters) What are the teaching and learning objectives of your project? What is the planned process of your project? How do you plan the didactic integration of the e-learning elements and tools? What is the difference to (your) previous courses? Further guiding questions (as orientation): • What new perspectives or collaborations does your concept create? Explain how learners and instructors from different disciplines work together. • How do you foster creative synergies between the disciplines involved? Provide concrete examples of joint solutions, innovative teaching methods, or digital tools.

Can your project be sustainably integrated into university education?
Why should the jury support your project?

Use of the prize money

The prize money of 5,000 € is tied to the project and should be used in a timely manner.
How would you use the prize money?
What personal contribution would you bring to the project?
Note: since your project is an offer for your students, we would be happy to support the use of student assistants in your project.

Has your project already been funded?

☐ No   ☐ Yes

Additional materials

To illustrate your proposal for the student jury, the inclusion of additional materials in the following form is expressly desired:

- • evaluations
- • screenshots
- • images and video files
- • Schematic plan / overview of your project

Here you can enter your existing Moodle courses or other online offerings that clarify your project plan (with password, if necessary):

OpenRUB

OpenRUB is our platform for free teaching and learning materials at RUB. Do you plan to publish your project or single materials on OpenRUB as Open Access or Open Educational Resource (OER)?

☐ Yes   ☐ No

We will be glad to advise you on the possibilities!
Further information on OER can be found on our homepage.

In order to facilitate the decision-making process for the student jury, please use only the text fields within the form to describe the content of your project.

Please submit the completed form and the additional materials by October 31st, 2025 via the moodle course „5x5000 – der E-Learning-Wettbewerb der RUB" in the folder „Participation".

Thank you for your submission and good luck!
